Do We Use Cookies?

Yes we do and here is why: The purpose of the cookie is to help the website keep track of your visits and activity. This isn't always a bad thing. For example, many online retailers use cookies to keep track of the items in a user's shopping cart as they explore the site. Without cookies, your shopping cart would reset to zero every time you clicked a new link on the site. That would make it impossible to buy anything online!

A website might also use cookies to keep a record of your most recent visit or to record your login information. Many people find this useful so that they can store passwords on commonly used sites, or simply so they know what they have visited or downloaded in the past.

Different types of cookies keep track of different activities. Session cookies are used only when a person is actively navigating a website; once you leave the site, the session cookie disappears. Tracking cookies may be used to create long-term records of multiple visits to the same site. Authentication cookies track whether a user is logged in, and if so, under what name.

This website nor its owners will ever ask for personal or sensitive information through social media platforms and encourage users with a specific request to discuss sensitive details to contact us through our primary communications channels on our own website and/or by telephone or email.
